Roll back in Medicaid expansion tops CBO's health savings menu

By Jane Norman, CQ HealthBeat Associate Editor
July 12, 2011

Congressional Budget Office Director Douglas Elmendorf painted a gloomy scenario of health costs steadily crawling upward, offering business leaders six specific possibilities for reductions. At the top of his list was rolling back the Medicaid expansion and insurance subsidies mandated in the healthcare law.

HHS officials quiet about high-risk pool expenses

By Rebecca Adams, CQ HealthBeat Associate Editor
July 11, 2011

When a new program to cover people with pre-existing conditions launched last July, lawmakers and state officials had one central question: How long will the USD 5 billion set aside for it last? One year later, federal officials still haven't answered that question — and won't say how much of the money has been spent so far.
